1. Chiao Sheng Pao: Originally representing the Overseas Chinese, it is now connected with the Bureau of Investigation and Statistics of the Military Affairs Commission.
2. Li Pao: Originally backed by the C.C. Clique, it has been sold to the General Labor Union of Shanghai, which is backed by the Minister of Social Welfare, Ku Chang-kang (谷正綱). It will henceforth be the official organ of the Labor Union of Shanghai.
3. Shen Chou Jih Pao: (a daily of small circulation) Originally connected with General Yang Hu, (楊虎) ex-Commander of the Shanghai-Woosung Garrison Headquarters, it is now financed by General Li Ping-sien, ex-Governor of Anhwei, who belongs to the Kwangsi clique.
4. Shih Shih Hsin Pao: This paper is still under the control of David Kung, son of H. H. Kung, but the editorial staff has been reorganized, and it has become ultra-conservative.
5. Ta Kung Pao: This paper has been losing considerable circulation, about 10,000 during the latter part of July and August, because of its vacillating policy in regard to support of Nanking. It has received indirect warning from government authorities because of its editorial policy. (From "The Monthly Report" of 1 September published by the China Weekly Review).
6. Ta Tsung Yeh Pao: This is the new name for Ta Ying Pao, financed by the Bureau of Investigation and Statistics of the Military Affairs Commission.
7. Ion Hui Pao: Circulation has gone up to about 40,000 since its suspension for a week by local police authorities.
8. Yi Shih Pao: The editor-in-chief of this paper, Hu Han-chun (胡漢春) has resigned. Ch'en Te-cheng is replacing him. Ch'en is the former editor-in-chief of Fin Kuo Jih Pao, Shanghai, and the Chung Yang Jih Pao, Chungking.
